Chairman Schmidt called the meeting to order, and announced that the following notice, which had been widely distributed, would be entered into the record of this Public meeting:

“The meetings of the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York are open to the public, and the Board welcomes the interest of those who attend. The public has ample opportunity to communicate with the Board. Public hearings on the Board’s policy calendar are scheduled one week prior to the Board’s regular meetings and members of the public who wish to communicate with the Board are invited to express their views at such public hearings. Furthermore, the Board holds additional public hearings each year in all of the five boroughs at which members of the public may also speak. In addition, written communications to the Board are distributed to all Trustees.

The Board must carry out the functions assigned to it by law and therefore will not tolerate conduct by members of the public that disrupts its meetings. In the event of disruptions, including noise which interferes with Board discussion, after appropriate warning, the Chairman will ask the security staff to remove persons engaging in disruptive conduct. The University may seek disciplinary and/or criminal sanctions against persons who engage in conduct that violates the University’s rules or State laws which prohibit interference with the work of public bodies.”

A. VIDEOTAPING OF BOARD MEETING: Chairman Schmidt announced that as usual CUNY-TV is making available this important community service by transmitting the Public Session of this afternoon’s meeting of the Board of Trustees live on cable Channel 75. The meeting is also being webcast live and can be accessed by going to www.cuny.edu. Future meetings of this Board will also be webcast live. The Public Session of this afternoon’s Board meeting will be available as a podcast within 24 hours and can be accessed through the CUNY website.

Chairman Schmidt stated that I would like to begin our deliberations on a solemn note to indicate our profound and deeply-felt collective admiration for the late Chancellor Emeritus Albert H. Bowker, who served CUNY from 1963 to 1971. When he joined CUNY in 1963, there were four senior colleges and just a few community colleges. When he left in 1971, there were eighteen campuses offering associate and baccalaureate degrees, including six community colleges, and The Graduate School and University Center. Al Bowker’s legacy at CUNY will long endure and we deeply mourn his loss.

I would like to welcome to the table Pamela Silverblatt, our new Vice Chancellor for Labor Relations, as well as Gloriana Waters who joins us in her new capacity as Vice Chancellor for Human Resources Management. Welcome to both of you.

Chairman Schmidt stated that I would like to congratulate Trustee Wellington Chen who was recently featured in a wonderful new book entitled Chinatown New York: Portraits, Recipes, and Memories by Ann Volkwein. It provides readers with a rich and insightful history of one of the great treasures of our City and nation.

I would also like to congratulate Vice Chair Philip Alfonso Berry and Trustees Rita DiMartino and Hugo Morales who were honored on December 6th by the New York City Hispanic Chamber of Commerce. Vice Chair Berry received the Trailblazer Award, Trustee DiMartino received the Hispanic Lifetime Leadership Award, and Trustee Morales was presented with the Hispanic Lifetime Scholar Award. I am also pleased to congratulate Trustee Morales on the award he received from the National Dominican Roundtable for over fifty years of distinguished community service. Congratulations.

Chairman Schmidt stated that I would like to thank Trustee Jeffrey Wiesenfeld for hosting a very successful and well-attended event on January 10th in celebration of the 40th Anniversary of Lehman College at the Alliance Bernstein LLP Corporate Headquarters. Thank you, Jeffrey.
B. COLLEGE AND FACULTY HONORS: Chairman Schmidt called on Trustee Valerie Lancaster Beal, who announced the following:

1. Hunter College Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry was recently featured in Chemical and Engineering News as being in the top 100 chemistry departments in this country, and one of the top few in terms of women faculty members. Congratulations!

2. Queens College is a leader in the number of black graduates who have completed Ph.D.s in English according to a recent study published by the Association of Departments of English. This performance puts Queens College ahead of several Ivy Leagues nationally. Congratulations!

3. Two Bronx Community College music professors have recently received honors in their field: Benjamin Yarmolinsky was awarded the 2007-2008 American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers plus award in the Concert Music Division, and Thomas Cipullo received the Aaron Copeland Award, Summer 2007. Congratulations!

C. STUDENT AND ALUMNI HONORS: Chairman Schmidt called on Trustee Kathleen M. Pesile, who announced the following:

1. Queens College 2007 Graduate Ross Herskovitz was recently cited by Councilman James Gennaro for his bravery and will be honored early next month by his local community board for rushing inside the burning home of an elderly and disabled neighbor and bringing him out from a second floor window to safety. Keep up the good work, and congratulations!

2. Special congratulations are in order to York College for initiating and implementing its first annual student scholarship benefit concert featuring off-Broadway's Three Mo' Tenors who played to a packed house. Keep up the good work!

E. ORAL REPORT OF THE CHANCELLOR: Chancellor Goldstein presented the following report:

I would like to start with your indulgence about my recollection of Albert H. Bowker. Al Bowker was a dear friend of mine for many years. I knew Al through the world of mathematics and statistics and we hear much about his work here at this University, and I would say that he really set the tone for bold, imaginative and courageous work for chancellors that came after him. Let me talk a little about the Al Bowker that I knew and reflect about how diverse his interests were and how profound his impact was not only in higher education as an administrator but as a mathematician and a very fine statistician.

Al Bowker started his career at MIT where he studied mathematics and then in the early 40's he went to Columbia University, which at that time was considered the place to study statistics here in the United States. Many of the students in their Ph.D. program started at CCNY. You would like to know that President Williams. Many of them went out to Stanford when Al Bowker left with a Ph.D. from Columbia University. That is where he met his wife, Rose Sitgreaves, who was also a very fine statistician and it was actually through Rose that I got to know Al Bowker well because Rose started an area in statistics called discriminate analysis and several decades later I put together a much more theoretical foundation of that subject, so we had that kind of professional connection between the two of us. Al and I at that point became very good friends.

When he left Columbia with a Ph.D. he went to Palo Alto where he essentially started a statistics department almost from scratch with many of the people who were trained at Columbia with him and many of them were CCNY students to start with, people like Seymour Geiser and Fred Holtz and a whole series of very fine people. He got the attention of the president of Stanford University at that point and was appointed Dean of the Graduate School at Stanford. Stanford in those days was not the powerhouse that it is today and he left his imprimatur on their Graduate School in a very profound way, recruiting some of the most able and promising young scholars who were trained more in the east and in the midwest and made their way out to Palo Alto.

It was at that time that people on the other coast, mainly the east coast, got to know about Bowker's work at Stanford University and he did come in 1963 and stayed to 1971 and the work that he did was well summarized. After leaving The City University of New York he went back to the west coast and he became Chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley where he stayed for almost ten years and really did very important work, also building up some critical departments. Mathematics was very strong at that time, but he built it up to the extraordinary place that it is today.

In the early 80's he returned back to Washington where he had spent a little time before but in an official capacity serving as Assistant Secretary for Post Secondary Education, a post that has not been filled since Al Bowker did that. He then came a little north, stayed on the east and worked with Johnny Toll, a very fine physicist who was then the President of the University of Maryland System and really built up Maryland as that very strong institution and then completed his work back at The City University of New York where he had a position as Vice President for Research at the Research Foundation of The City University of New York.
Al was a big opera fan. We had that in common. We would exchange books, he would tell me about books he thought I would like and I did the same with him. He was a dear friend, someone who I learned much from, somebody whom I deeply admired. He cared deeply about this great University and I will miss him and this University owes him a debt of gratitude for the wonderful work that he did. I subscribe to what you said Mr. Chairman, we will surely miss him.

Mr. Chairman, several months ago I reported to you and the Board that our University, in response to the horrific events at Virginia Tech University, was moving forward with an enterprise-wide solution that would notify our students, faculty and staff of an emergency as it is occurring. I asked our Executive Vice Chancellor and Chief Operating Officer Allan Dobrin to lead an initiative to put together a system of communication and I am pleased to report that last week we launched the first phase of the new CUNY ALERT system.

Phase 1 consists of our students, faculty and staff pre-registering to receive emergency alert messages. These messages can be delivered in an audio format (phone calls), as emails, or as text messages. Phase 2 will be the launch of the notification system when activated in March, and will send emergency messages to the registered individuals at a particular college and, if necessary, University-wide.

I am pleased to say that CUNY ALERT is a true joint venture between The City University of New York and the New York State Office of Emergency Management (SEMO). CUNY ALERT is modeled after NYS ALERT and the SUNY Alert System and could not be implemented without their participation and partnership.

We have and will continue to work with the college presidents to get the message out about the availability of such an important tool. I hope we never have to use the system, but it gives me comfort, and I am sure it comforts of all of us in our University knowing that such critical information can be shared in a timely way when necessary. Executive Vice Chancellor and Chief Operating Officer Allan Dobrin, thank you for rising to the occasion in the way that you did and we deeply appreciate the very good work that you did.

The main event in my presentation is to set the stage for a discussion by Vice Chancellors Ernesto Malave and Iris Weinshall on the recommendations that Governor Spitzer has provided in his Executive Budget which was released on January 22nd and the Preliminary Budget that Mayor Bloomberg just released at the end of last week. I am not going to discuss any of the numbers, I will leave that to both Vice Chancellor Malave and Vice Chancellor Weinshall, but I do want to set the tone for the discussion.

For the Executive Budget, all eyes were focused on the recommendations that came out of the Commission on Higher Education and all of you here, Board members and the rest of us around this table know that we at this University played a very prominent role in shaping the recommendations that were delivered to the Governor as a preliminary report in the very early part of December of last year.

Some of the highlights for us were the endorsement of the New York State COMPACT, which was very strenuously and enthusiastically embraced by the full Commission and very much embraced by this Governor. The investment of 2,000 faculty at both CUNY and SUNY and, of course, that investment is over and beyond the investment that we will continue to make at this University. This continues to be a very high priority for us.

I would say the third area for this University that we have much interest in, and are helping to shape, is an innovation fund which the Commission on Higher Education recommended at about a $3 billion level to be expended over a ten-year period. The purpose of the fund is to engage mainly the universities in the State of New York in basic and applied research that have direct linkages to creating a more fertile economic environment in the state, creating jobs, serving as an attractor for new businesses and to create a sense of importance in the work of all that we do, mainly in the sciences, in the engineering sciences as well.

We knew that these were the areas that we were going to spend most of our time thinking about when we listened to the Governor's speech at the State of the State on January 9th, and when he put together the Budget on the 22nd. What many of us were surprised about was the vehicle that he was proposing to fund a lot of the investment that is called for in the Commission Report that we shared with him. The vehicle is not a complex idea, it has been tried and discussed at other states in the United States and it is basically to extract value out of the cash flow that comes as revenue to the State of New York through the New York State Lottery, which is on a yearly basis between $6 and $7 billion a year. The Governor’s idea is to create the net present value of that cash flow over a period of years and as a result of that monetize that cash flow as a single amount of money that could be put into an endowment which would be generating revenue that can support much of what we had hoped to see in the Governor’s Executive Budget.

Clearly this is something that would need legislative approval and the Governor is now, as I understand it, in serious discussions with a consortium of investment bankers who know how to put together a transaction like this, of course, but also to start the process of engagement with the legislature because there are issues outside of the financial transaction that people will be concerned about. In this budget we do not see investment, but the investment is anticipatory as the vehicle of this transaction is connected with the lottery.

What we did see in the budget is a very clear statement of stability, especially at the senior colleges. Our mandatory costs are essentially covered with the exception of a small amount of money—it does not sound that small—but relative to our base it is about $16 million, which is under the rubric of efficiencies and we are hopeful that we will be able to work with the legislature to get that righted and then perhaps some further investment.

We start with what I would call stability and, of course, stability is a word that can become unstable if, indeed, we see a further serious erosion in the revenues that are coming into the State of New York, largely as a result of the very severe and deep problems that we have seen in the fixed income market for securities. You have heard about the structured investment vehicles, the collateralized debt obligations, all of these things, mortgage backed securities that have created havoc in the financial services industry.

Much of the budget that the Governor was planning on was predicated on a certain amount of profitability in Wall Street and a number much higher than what was realized in 2007, and so about two-thirds of the fiscal year we were doing fine, but the last third of the year things fell apart. On an ongoing basis it is not clear where indeed revenues are going to be. I hedge a bit when I say stability. The budget that is coming out of the Governor that will now be remanded for discussion at the legislature has a very strong starting position in terms of stability. Investment hopefully will come as a result of the vehicle that I have just very briefly described.

The area that I feel much less enthusiastic about on a coming out of the gate basis is the Capital Budget. While it is true that the Capital Budget is the largest that has been proposed in the history of The City University of New York by a Governor, it is woefully inadequate to deal with many of the deep needs that we have here at this University. We have an aged infrastructure and it was only in the last maybe fifteen years where money was starting to come into the system for rehabilitation and building new buildings. We need a lot more support on the Capital side and that is going to be something that Vice Chancellor Iris Weinshall will talk about shortly. We have some work to do there.

Most of the projects that we have in the pipeline now will have sufficient funding to carry them through to fruition. The thing that I worry about, Mr. Chairman, is the new projects that a great University has to depend upon and we have to go out and project these costs and needs maybe a decade or half a decade ahead. We have some work to do on the Capital side.

On the Preliminary Budget that the Mayor has proposed, and the Mayor will come out with his final Executive Budget in the Spring, there are problems for the community colleges both on the Operating side and on the Capital side. We have a lot of work to do here.

Statement of Vice Chancellor Ernesto Malave:

Good afternoon, everyone, and happy New Year. Let me first tell you what you have before you. You have the final version of the CUNY Budget Request, which includes all the individual college investment programs, that was not included in the summary documents from before. At your leisure feel free to go through that. I will be going over a PowerPoint presentation entitled the 2008-2009 New York State Executive and New York City Preliminary Operating Budget, which is this document here and I will go through it very quickly.
On page 2 and beginning with the senior colleges, the Operating Budget for the senior colleges totals a little under $1.7 billion, which represents a net increase of $35.9 million or a 3.6% increase above the current year's adjusted budget. That $35.9 million is a net figure. It is all in the form of additional State aid of $35.9 million or 3.6%. As you can see on page 3, when I refer to it as a net figure, it includes $52.7 million to fund all of the University's fringe benefit costs, new building rental costs and all the inflationary increases. All the mandatory costs you have built into your budget are all accounted for in this budget.

In addition, outside of the University's Operating Budget, which is included in the document that was approved by the Trustees, we had requested $8.5 million to cover our energy costs. While the State did not include that in the Operating Budget, it did create a revenue pool outside of the University's Operating Budget of $8.5 million for CUNY. Our energy needs, whether they are $8.5 million, or whether they are $11 million they are going to be fully covered in this budget. Although we have a challenge, all of our mandatory, continuing costs are financed. All the resources that we received for COMPACT 1 and COMPACT 2 are all rolled into the base budgets and colleges will be able to continue making those investments.

I will go to the third point before I come back to the second one. The $35.9 million, I said was a net number, the $52.7 million is the increases. There are $16.7 million in decreases to be achieved through efficiencies and there were also, not uncommon for executives, the elimination of various legislative add-ons, in this case $652,000 that the legislature added to the SEEK program and a half a million dollars that was added for the Joseph S. Murphy Institute. Those were the negative figures.

The new investment initiative in the Executive Budget was a million dollar increase for the expansion of nursing programs. You should know that while that is included in the senior college budget those funds will be available for community colleges as well. On page 4 you will see the numbers that I just referred to in a different form, the overall increase of 3.6% of State aid and 2.2% overall.

On page 5 you will note as the Chancellor indicated that the budget does not fund and provide the funding that we needed to cover the investment program that we had asked for in the Budget Request. If you take into account the reduction of $16.7 million and the requested amount that we had for investment, the shortfall is $74.2 million and that is what we would need if we wanted to get our entire Budget Request financed.

The Chancellor indicated the little bit of uncertainty is that the investment program that is not scheduled for 2009 but 2010 is to be, in part, financed for the $4 billion endowment which requires the legislature to approve a scheme that the Governor has through the State lottery. We will know about that as the legislature considers it in the Adopted Budget. If there is an Adopted Budget condition that includes an endowment, then we can anticipate some measure of investment, except it will not begin in 2009 but in 2010.

On the next page you will just see the numbers very quickly. If you look at the mandatory needs, we had requested $62.9 million in mandatory needs and as you can see that is virtually covered in the Executive Budget. The reason for the $1.7 million difference is basically rounding areas on the fringe benefits, so it is not a real concern.

The shortfall is in the programmatic initiatives. We had sought $21.4 million in additional State support to finance the COMPACT and we had sought $33.2 million in revenues from a tuition increase of 5%. The Governor did not propose a tuition increase in the Executive Budget, thus the $33 million that we were anticipating to fund the investment program is not there. When you combine that with the shortfall of $17.9 million you have a $72.5 million shortfall and that is what we are going to invite the legislature to consider so we can begin an investment program in 2009.

For the community colleges the Executive Budget includes a number of positives and negatives. The first one is a $3.1 million reduction in community college aid associated with a reduction in the funding for FTE. Like those two other items for the senior colleges, the so-called legislative add-ons, last year the legislature added a $50 base aid increase. The Executive is reducing that in this Budget. You should know we had asked for it in this Budget Request, an increase in funding of $200 per FTE in order to fund the investment program. On the other side of the ledger, because of the enrollment growth which continues at the community colleges we did receive a $2.1 million increase in funding for that, which sort of offset the reduction.
Borough of Manhattan Community College received the State's share of a $5.4 million request that we have for new building needs. That is a very positive development and we would expect the City of New York to match that as they always do. Very important, the last dot point, that the maintenance of effort provision, which requires the local sponsor, in this case the City of New York to provide the same level of funding as in prior years is maintained in the Executive Budget. That is the State Budget. On the State side, as the Chancellor indicated, we have a challenge to meet, to sort of offset that 1%, which is less than a 1% reduction of $16.7 million and, of course, we will be inviting the legislature to assist us with an investment program.

On the City side for the community colleges, as the Chancellor indicated, it is a little bit more challenging. The Mayor's Executive Budget is not released until the end of April or early May, after the Mayor is able to ascertain the effect of the State Adopted Budget on the City, he looks at all the revenues that are available and then makes a final determination. As we speak, it includes a net reduction of $28.9 million and that includes reductions that were already in place plus an additional reduction of $9.4 million that was added. You will recall that the Mayor invited us to participate in a peg exercise. Well, we did and they have accepted all the recommendations and they actually added a little bit more to that. On the positive side the Mayor's Executive Budget includes financing for mandatory needs in the area of collective bargaining, fringe benefits and pensions.

Outside of the community college budget, the City of New York's budget also includes recommendations to eliminate a lot of programs that largely support the senior colleges. In this case the $11.2 million Peter F. Vallone Scholarship Program, which largely benefits senior college students is pegged for elimination. This is not new, it is a City Council initiative and the Mayor, as any other Mayor, would require the Council to restore it. But, nevertheless, in these more challenging environments it becomes a heavy lift.

On page 9 the Budget—this is simply just for information purposes, because I do not think this is a real cut, but the current Preliminary Budget does not include funding for the CUNY Accelerated Study in Associate Programs (ASAP) that the University launched this year for the CUNY Prep Program. Those are two programs that were funded under the City's Poverty Commission and we have been told that once the Poverty Commission makes a determination as to whether to continue the programs the dollars would flow. We expect these dollars assuming a positive response from the Commission to find its way into the Executive Budget. Like the Peter F. Vallone Scholarship Program the budget does not include funding for the Citizenship and Immigration Project and the Black Male Initiative among other initiatives that are the favorites of the City Council.

Finally, on page 11 the Governor's Executive Budget included a new financial aid program for veterans in the City of New York, not only from the Persian Gulf conflicts, but going back to the Vietnam conflicts and Afghanistan, so New Yorkers who are veterans in effect have a tuition free program for up to $3,550 for any college in the State of New York, both public and private except that it is no more than the $4,350, which is the tuition level at the State University of New York.

As the Chancellor indicated, we have a fairly stable environment. We clearly do not have an investment environment yet, but we have a very stable environment going forward and assuming that there is no further collapse in the financial markets that will require the State of New York to make any midyear adjustments. On the City side we worry a little bit about the community colleges because we are looking at a cut to the senior colleges from the State of New York, as well as a cut from the City of New York. As you know, the City Council is now involved in considering what to restore and it is a very difficult environment for the City Council of New York.

Last year they restored all of our funds, did not give us investment in what was a very good year for the City of New York financially. That is no longer the case so they are going to have to struggle to make a restoration in this environment, but we are going to be working very hard with the Council and we still have plenty of time between now and the time that the Mayor issues the Executive Budget. Thank you.

Statement of Vice Chancellor Iris Weinshall:
In your packets you will find a one page summary of the State Budget. As the Chancellor noted we have our work cut out for us and challenges ahead. I think one has to look at the positive and not so much the negative. We got an increase of $2.8 billion in our Capital Budget and the State re-appropriated $2.6 billion. So going forward over five years we have $5.4 billion.

Having said that, in the area of existing and new projects we were a tad disappointed in the appropriations made by the State. They did appropriate $960 million for existing and new projects and what that means is we have a number of projects in construction, and because of inflation and delays and various other reasons we are going to have to add money to those projects to complete them, and that will leave us a little bit more money to start new projects.

At a previous Board meeting I talked about critical maintenance and critical repair and that was a category that the State embraced both on the CUNY and the SUNY side and they have budgeted $1.4 billion for critical maintenance over five years. They have chosen to appropriate only $284 million for each of the successive five years. This is a positive note because it is the first time they have acknowledged that we have critical maintenance issues at CUNY and the category in which we can use this money is very broad. So we are now working to come up with a list of projects that we feel that we can get done in the next year because they would like to see that money spent right away.

On the State side I will note again we were a little disappointed. Our program was rather robust and we thought full of some very good projects, but I do not think one can really sneeze at a $5.4 billion five-year plan and we have a lot of work ahead of us. On the community college side the news was not as good. Although they gave us $250 million new dollars to spend and they re-appropriated the money from last year, another $326 million, which gives us now about $586 million, they did not acknowledge a critical maintenance piece on the community college side. As I have noted before that will just add to the gap.

As I have made in presentations before, really the areas that are in most need, not to say that the four year schools are not, but the community colleges clearly need a lot of work in the critical maintenance area. Their rationale for that was their concern that they appropriate the money and then the City does not match it and then that appropriation would just be sitting there unmatched. It was quite a disappointment for us not to have a little bit of money on the community college side.

On the City side the news is better from the Capital viewpoint. We had some very good news from City OMB and, in particular, it was good news for the community colleges. They have fully funded the building under construction at Medgar Evers College so we will not have to go back to the City, we will have enough funds to finish that building. They have also appropriated money for the new North Instructional building at Bronx Community College. They gave us half of what we asked for, but they are very positively inclined to give us the rest of it. So we feel good about that. The best news is on Fiterman Hall. They had pushed out money for Fiterman Hall in the out years, they have moved it back now into 2010 where we could use it and they are looking forward to having a conversation with us to finally fully fund Fiterman Hall.

We feel fairly confident on the City side that the community colleges have gotten at least the money that we need to get those projects done. Clearly though we need to talk to the State and the City more about the community colleges and that is really where the challenge lies for us going forward.

Statement of Trustee Hugo M. Morales:

One of the things that you described Mr. Chancellor, is that you started an ALERT system, which I think is very critical and very important and you also stated that you hope that it will never be used. My feeling is that one of the best ways to avoid this is to perhaps in the near future develop a central office just related to the mental hygiene services in the University, which will have the interaction with all of these campuses and advise all of the students the best way how to deal with a psychological problem. I think that will be something to prevent any tragic consequence in the future.

We know that the amount of anxiety, depression and suicide amongst students is very high. Just last week I learned about one student who was overwhelmed and today he is in the medical center, he tried to commit suicide. I believe that the development of a central office for mental hygiene services will be a necessary and very important component in the City University. I hope that will be developed in the near future.
Chancellor Matthew Goldstein continued with his oral report, stating that we are very concerned about counseling, professional counseling, especially mental health counseling and there is now a spirited discussion here at the Central Office and I would like to bring you in, Trustee Morales. You are a distinguished psychiatrist and I think you could help with some of our thinking. So I will be in touch with you to see how we construct some of this.

Getting back to the budgets that we have right now presented to us, we have a lot of work to do, I would say especially on the Capital side here we have probably the greatest likelihood of getting further consideration in the legislature and we will be working vigorously in that regard. It is true that we have $5.4 billion and that sounds like a tremendous amount of money, but it has to be factored in with the notion that this University for many decades really just piled on lots and lots of unmanaged physical facilities, so we have so much to really catch up on, but I am optimistic that we will get our word across.

The other thing that I think Vice Chancellor Iris Weinshall will agree with is that when the Governor started talking about the five-year Capital program, there was an intention of creating a lockbox here, you start out with this program that both the Governor and the legislature would agree to and there will be no further intrusion into those dollars. I believe that there is some rethinking about that which would give us an opportunity over the next couple of fiscal years to get further enhancement. We do have a lot of work to do but I think we will prevail to a much larger extent.

Let me just finish up, Mr. Chairman. We have a CUNY Legislative Action Council that we are working with on communications and outreach. When I addressed the Council of Presidents last week I emphasized the need for all of us to educate the legislature. You know, it is not just outreach and it is not just lobbying to get a further consideration for more resources, we really have to educate so many members of the legislature on critical elements that will allow this University and SUNY to do the work that they are capable of doing. We have a lot of that work ahead of us.

I have asked five presidents to serve as borough coordinators for meetings with the legislature, Ricardo R. Fernandez from the Bronx, Edison O. Jackson from Brooklyn, James L. Muyskens from Queens, Jeremy Travis from Manhattan and Tomás D. Morales from Staten Island and those meetings have started to take place and more will be happening. I will be up in Albany on Wednesday testifying in front of the Assembly Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committee on my observations of the Governor's Executive Budget and where I think challenges remain for us.

I am working with a number of members of the Commission on Higher Education to put some texture on the innovation from this $3 billion innovation fund and my other colleagues are John Sexton of NYU, Joel Seligman of the University of Rochester, along with John Clark, the Interim Chancellor of SUNY, and we will have recommendations very soon with respect to how we believe the innovation fund should be structured and hopefully that will see the light with that revenue that we hope will be forthcoming through this vehicle that I mentioned earlier.

On February 16th, we will host the annual CUNY Luncheon during the Black, Puerto Rican, Hispanic, and Asian Legislative Conference in Albany. That is an event that gets many of the legislators to our luncheon and gives us an opportunity to talk about the things that we need beyond that which is provided in the Governor's budget. We are working now with the Governor's office on the 30-day amendment period. This is a period which allows the University to appeal to the Governor on technical changes to the proposed budget and we are certainly working closely with the Mayor's office and the City Council on enhancements to the Preliminary Budget of the City of New York.

I would like to just mention that Secretary and Senior Vice Chancellor Jay Hershenson and Vice Chancellor Garrie Moore are working with the University Student Senate and student leaders on a new training program called Student Investment Ambassadors (SIA) to establish a cadre of speakers and educational advocates inspired by the eloquent testimony of so many of the students during the hearings that were held on the Commission on Higher Education.

You all know that 2005 through 2015 continues to be "Decade of Science" at this University. I am pleased to inform the Board that the New York City Science and Engineering Fair, which approximately has gone on for about sixty years here in the City, and which in the past been run by the New York Academy of Sciences along with collaborations through Polytechnic University, is now a CUNY-run event. We were chosen by the DOE to take on that important effort, approximately 100 CUNY faculty have signed up to serve as judges and it gives us a wonderful opportunity to work with promising young students in the high schools who express interest in science.

We are also very much involved in the first annual World Science Festival that will take place. This is an international effort that will take place in the City of New York, the brainchild is our friend Brian Greene, a very renowned physicist and mathematician at Columbia University who thought up the idea of creating a Davos kind of event in a yearly way here in New York City and CUNY is going to be very much a part of this World Science Summit.

Finally I would like to congratulate President Jennifer Raab on being selected by the ABA as one of twenty members of the DirectWomen Board Institute's Class of 2008. The Institute and workshop are designed to develop and support the placement of women lawyers on corporate boards of major public companies. Jennifer, congratulations, that is a singular honor for us.

Lastly, Mr. Chairman, Baruch College, and I want to congratulate President Kathleen M. Waldron on this, was the recipient of the Theodore Hesburgh Award this year, which is a very prestigious award for a communication program that was started several years ago by a benefactor at Baruch, Bernard Schwartz, who has been connected with Baruch for many years and Kathleen, congratulations, that is a wonderful honor.

The Committee also received an update on the performance of the University's investment pool and an announcement that a search for a Chief Investment Officer was in progress. In addition Mr. Chairman, I wish to report that the Board Audit Sub-committee was presented by the Independent Audit firm of KPMG with the results of the University's Fiscal Year 2007 Audited Financial Statements. I am pleased to report that the audit yielded a clean and unqualified opinion from the CPA firm.
NO. 4. COMMITTEE ON ACADEMIC POLICY, PROGRAM AND RESEARCH: RESOLVED, That the following items be approved:

A. THE GRADUATE SCHOOL AND UNIVERSITY CENTER (SCHOOL OF PROFESSIONAL STUDIES) – M.A. IN APPLIED THEATRE:

RESOLVED, That the program in Applied Theatre leading to the Master of Arts degree to be offered by the Graduate School and University Center through the School of Professional Studies be approved, effective February 1, 2008, subject to financial ability.

EXPLANATION: Applied Theatre refers to the field of using theatre and drama in community and education settings, reaching audiences that traditional theatre often by-passes. It involves the use of theatre and drama as a medium through which to address social issues and educational concerns in a wide variety of non-traditional contexts, such as community outreach programs; social services; health education; team building and leadership training; historic and environmental sites; museums; and advocacy group work.

The purpose of the proposed program is to educate future leaders and scholars in the field of Applied Theatre. The program will provide students with a comprehensive introduction to the history of theatre movements and it will explore the practices from which the field of Applied Theatre has developed. Students will be exposed to key theories in theatre production, performance studies, human development, learning theory, group dynamics, ethics, cultural studies and multiculturalism all of which help to define and support Applied Theatre practices.

B. CITY COLLEGE – M.S.ED. IN EDUCATIONAL THEATRE:

RESOLVED, That the program in Educational Theatre leading to the Master of Science in Education degree to be offered at City College be approved, effective February 1, 2008, subject to financial ability.

EXPLANATION: The purpose of the proposed program is to prepare theatre educators to teach theatre classes and to integrate theatre studies into the classroom and general school curriculum. The program is designed to meet the New York State Education Department requirements and is designed for prospective teachers with theatre and/or education backgrounds. Graduates of the program will receive an M.S.Ed. in Educational Theatre with initial certification to teach theatre in grades K-12.

The New York State Education Department recently identified a shortage in Theatre programs and as a result reinstated the certificate in Theatre. The Department of Education is currently working on a general certification in the Arts. In addition, there are a growing number of specialized high schools and public charter schools in New York City and New York State, many of which have a strong interest in the arts. Thus, the need for a teacher education program for theatre teachers with the ability to direct school productions, facilitate an aesthetic appreciation of theatre, and implement applied theatre strategies in and out of the classroom is considerable and immediate.

C. COLLEGE OF STATEN ISLAND – ABOLITION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF STUDENT SERVICES:

RESOLVED, That the Department of Student Services be abolished at the College of Staten Island, effective February 1, 2008.

EXPLANATION: As a result of a thorough review and after consultation with the College Council which consists of members of the faculty, staff, and students, the College proposes to abolish the existing Department of Student Services. The Department of Student Services has been made up of faculty who have served in counseling functions. As a result of retirement by faculty members of the Department, new hires in the Higher Education Officer series, and conversion from faculty to Higher Education Officer series titles, there is an insufficient number of faculty members remaining to conduct the functions and activities of an academic department.

A separate resolution has been submitted to the Board of Trustees via the University Report regarding a personnel action. Contingent upon the approval of the Board of Trustees, one faculty member from the Department of Student Services will be transferred to the Department of Psychology.
Report of Academic Policy, Program, and Research Committee Chair Wellington Z. Chen:
Executive Vice Chancellor Botman also presented two information items to the Committee. 1) CUNY Law School, Center for Diversity in the Legal Profession: This Center will provide educational and community outreach services in order to promote participation of minorities in the legal profession. The Center plans to host an annual conference, conduct research and publish its results; prepare educational materials for the larger community on careers in law; and partner with other CUNY entities, both colleges and programs such as the Black Male Initiative. 2) The Graduate School and University Center, The Leon Levy Center for Biography: Leon Levy, a Wall Street investment banker, was a philanthropist and a CUNY graduate. The Graduate School has received a major grant from the Leon Levy Foundation to support the establishment and operating costs of the Leon Levy Biography Center. The new Center will fund the research and writing of several biographies each year, support conferences, seminars and other scholarly activities related to the field.

X. QUEENS COLLEGE – AMENDMENTS TO THE GOVERNANCE PLAN:

RESOLVED, That the proposed amendments to the Governance Plan of Queens College (the Academic Senate Charter) be approved.

EXPLANATION: The proposed amendments to the Queens College Governance plan have been approved by the Academic Senate and are recommended by the College President. The amendments reduce the numbers of senators while maintaining the current faculty-student ratio. The change is proposed to allow the Senate to conduct its business effectively, in light of the New York State Court of Appeal ruling in Perez v CUNY indicating that governance bodies such as the Academic Senate are subject to the Open Meetings Law and therefore must meet legally-mandated quorum and majority vote requirements in order to conduct business.

Specifically, the Academic Senate membership will be reduced from 90 to 60 with the 2/3 faculty and 1/3 student ratio maintained. The reduction in faculty and student seats are from categories that have been abolished, historically not filled or only partially filled. The revised governance plan is designed to achieve greater attendance and allow for a more orderly conduct of Academic Senate business.

(b) Employees in Military Leave at Reduced Pay status will be paid their regular City University of New York salary (base pay) reduced by military pay (base pay plus housing and food allowances). The determination of rate of payment for the Military Leave at Reduced Pay will be based upon the employee's regular City University of New York salary as of his/her last day in full pay status and the employee's military pay on the first day of his/her activation, and shall not be subject to adjustment during the period of leave at reduced pay.

(c) Employees eligible for Military Leave at Reduced Pay will not be eligible to earn annual and temporary disability leave/sick leave accruals or to receive credit for holidays.

The provisions of this resolution shall not apply to those employees who have voluntarily separated from City University of New York service or who are terminated for cause. Furthermore, the provisions of this resolution

EXPLANATION: On October 22, 2001, November 18, 2002, March 29, 2004, February 28, 2005 and January 8, 2007, the Board of Trustees passed resolutions extending Military Leave and employer-paid health and welfare benefits coverage for University employees recalled from the Reserves to active military service in response to the events of September 11, 2001. This resolution authorizes the continuation of these benefits through December 31, 2008 in response to the need for employees to serve in the Armed Forces in light of the continuing evolution of the response to September 11, 2001 into a wider campaign against terror, including military action in Iraq.

This resolution, consistent with the policies being followed by the State of New York for its employees, authorizes, under certain conditions, the continuation of Supplemental Military Leave at full pay for the greater of 30 calendar days or 22 working days, in addition to the Military Leave provided pursuant to Section 242 of the New York State Military Law. Statement of President Kathleen M. Waldron:
Professor Gail Levin is in Europe on a Fulbright so she will not be with us today but I would like to just thank everyone for recommending her. Professor Levin is a very Distinguished Art Historian who is presently on a Fulbright program as a Distinguished Research Chair of the Roosevelt Study Center in Holland. She has in the past published many books. Her most famous books are on Edward Hopper, a seven hundred page biography of Hopper which was nominated or named by the Wall Street Journal as one of the hundred most influential books in art in the last century. In addition, Professor Levin has written a ground breaking work on Judy Chicago. Professor Levin has been a long-time faculty member at Baruch College and has distinguished herself in her teaching, her research and her service to the community.

Statement of President Jennifer Raab:
Thank you very much for this opportunity. I am greatly privileged and delighted to introduce our Distinguished Professor Peter Carey. Peter is quite simply one of the world's foremost contemporary literary artists. He is at the top of the field of English language novelists. There is simply no better novelist now working in North America and I would not be in the slightest surprised if some time in the next decade he were to win a Nobel Prize. I cannot think of another novelist writing in English who is more deserving.
I believe all the things wholeheartedly that I just said but I did not actually think of them first. The first comment was from Salman Rushdie, the second from Jonathan Franzen and the third from Russell Banks. So you can see from these comments and the people who wrote on behalf of Peter just how extraordinary Peter is as a writer and what a great addition he is to the City University faculty. Peter is one of only two people to win the coveted Booker Prize twice. He has won two Commonwealth prizes, three Miles Franklin awards, which is Australia's Pulitzer Prize, and the list goes on.

I hope all of you will see for yourself by reading his new book, which is so hot off the presses that I was not actually able to bring copies for all of my colleagues but we will get them. We have got Peter's last copies from the publisher and you will probably see a lot of him on his book tour. I can speak with more personal expertise on Peter's role as an extraordinary teacher, mentor and academic leader at Hunter College. Hunter's writing MFA is the best in the City and that is not just my opinion but was recently written in The Village Voice. What is so extraordinary is that we were able to accomplish this credential in a short five-years.

Peter taught at Princeton, at Stanford, at so many Ivy League universities, but when we met he wanted to come to Hunter College to build a program with the City University population's immigrants, first in their families to go to college, and this is a population he felt had an edge and wanted to tell their stories and he was so very right. We now have hundreds of applications for a very few spots and all of the students are extremely engrossed and feel that they are getting extraordinary attention and extraordinary career opportunities.

Together we created the Herzog Fellowship Program which places our young writers with extraordinary writers such as Salman Rushdie, Toni Morrison, Jonathan Franzen and the list goes on. All these people are very close friends and colleagues of Peter's. We have a distinguished writing series where writers such as Frank McCord and Ann Carson in the next few months and many of the other names I mentioned will work with the students and give readings to the Hunter community. This is a program that someone of Peter's stature often would be found as purely a figurehead. In our case Peter has just thrown himself into nurturing and growing this program to make it the quality that it is and he is truly tireless in his efforts.

It has been one of the great privileges of my tenure to be able to work with Peter and to help support him as he has worked with our students and they have created something so important for this University. I thank you, very much and I am so happy that the next time Peter gets one of these wonderful awards they will note that he is a CUNY Distinguished Professor.

Statement of Professor Peter Carey:
It is very odd being an Australian in New York City. I mean, there are so many different nations and ethnic groups, but I think it is only the Australians who get asked when are you going home? So, I mean, there is not, as far as I know, an Australian neighborhood in Queens and there is no easy explanation for how we belong here or what we might contribute or connect. It is really true that this is what Hunter College and Jennifer Raab gave to me in the City, that in the classrooms in Hunter I found students who were grappling with all the things that as an Australian you grapple with all your life which is really, I am not going to give my Australian history lecture, about the country that begins with the penal colony and the genocide and how the trauma keeps on being acted out over and over and over forever, but I will say that it does breed some self doubting and conflicted people who are always belonging in two places at once.

This is the problem on the opportunity and the gift my students have. They are really often, like the student from British Guyana, astonished to find this white guy who sort of understands all the issues of colonialism and the question of how you have to use your own language and not betray it and at the same time you really passionately wish to address the center and being known by the center at the same time as being true to yourself. Weirdly you see this is what it is like to be an Australian. Not by any good judgment on my part but as sort of good luck and Jennifer Raab's incredible insistence I found myself in this very privileged place, which gives me great pleasure, well, I am at home in Australia too, but this has become my home, I have become today finally at last, I think at least a New Yorker. Thank you, very much.
Statement of President James Muyskens:
I would like to say just a few words about our newest Distinguished Professor, Professor of English and Director of Italian American Studies. He, unfortunately, cannot be with us today. He comes to us from the State University of New York at Stony Brook where he was a long-time director of their groundbreaking Italian American Studies Program. He has written and edited many books, including, From Wise Guys to Wise Men, Leaving Little Italy and Italian Signs, American Streets, which won the Giovanni Angeli Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs Award and was selected as an outstanding academic book for choice.

As one of the founders of the Bodege Press and editor of Voices in Italian Americana, the editor of the State University of New York Press series and Italian American Studies and past president of the American Italian Historical Society, Professor Gardaphé has been instrumental in establishing the field of Italian American Studies and creating a sense of community among Italian American writers. Prof. Gardaphé says he is coming to The City University of New York for one special purpose, to create the best Italian American Studies program in the world and we believe he is just the man to do it. Thank you.

Statement of President William P. Kelly:
Good afternoon, everyone. It is with great pride and deep personal pleasure that I introduce to you James Oakes. Professor Oakes is a leading historian of 19th Century America, is a faculty member at Princeton, at Northwestern and at The Graduate Center he has engaged in seminal questions that dominated American intellectual life from the revolution through the Civil War. More particularly, he is one of the world's most distinguished authorities on the history of American slavery.

His first book, The Ruling Race: A History of American Slaveholders, redefined the intellectual landscape of that field of inquiry. Before Oakes' book no systematic study of slave owners had been undertaken. Prior scholarship focused almost exclusively on the largest slaveholders, the plantation owners who figure so prominently in Southern romanticism, the Scarlet O'Haras of the world if you will. Oakes' intensive archival scholarships centered instead on more typical slave owners, economically marginal figures whose lives were marked by instability and westward movement. Oakes thereby replaced a paternalistic pre-capitalist model of southern life with one deeply enmeshed in the market revolutions and the contradictions of liberal economic theory.

Oakes' second book, Slavery & Freedom in Interpretation of the Old South extended and refined the argument of the ruling race and solidified his reputation as one of the pre-eminent historians of his generation. Most notably that book re-centered the relationship between slavery and liberal capitalism. Its keen understanding of the tensions inherent in commercial humanism and its resetting of American slavery in a comparative context stimulated much subsequent work on southern social history and touched off a decade long scholarly debate.

Professor Oakes' most recent book, The Radical and the Republican: Frederick Douglass, Abraham Lincoln, and the Triumph of AntiSlavery Politics, was widely hailed and wonderfully well reviewed when it was published last year. It is well on its way to becoming a classic text in Antebellum political history. David Donald, America's preeminent Lincoln scholar argued that "No other historian has so clearly explained Douglas' changing political affiliations, nor do I know of another account of Lincoln's shifting positions on emancipation that is so full and so convincing."

One of The Graduate Center's most effective teachers and most dedicated citizens Professor Oakes is only now entering his scholarly prime. We have greatly benefited from his presence among us and we expect much more to come. Finally, I take particular pride, as I am sure you will as well, in noting that Professor Oakes is one of our own. He is a 1974 alumnus of Baruch College. I introduce him to you with great delight and our restrained enthusiasm.

Statement of Professor James Oakes:
I arrived here thirty-eight years ago this month at Baruch College, ready and eager to set myself on a path to a distinguished career in international banking. Nothing went wrong thanks to a freshmen English composition professor who called me to her office at the end of the first semester and said I do not care what you major in but if you major in business you will be bored to tears. Whether she was right or wrong, I do not know, but she was followed shortly thereafter by a teacher of American history, Selma Burrell, who told me in the first weeks of her introduction to American history that I had the makings of a good historian and two years later suggested to me that I get a Ph.D. I was not even sure I knew what a Ph.D. was at that point. I was a Catholic school working class boy...
The first thing I want to say to you all this afternoon is that I came to life intellectually at the City University and for that I am profoundly grateful. I spent eight years at Berkeley. I went to Princeton, spent five years there, twelve years at Northwestern and when the offer came from The Graduate Center it was partly just the attraction of coming home but also it was for me at that moment in my intellectual life a lifeline, the last chance, I thought, to see if I could continue as a scholar and I found myself when I got here for the first-time in a very long time in a department with colleagues who were genuinely enthusiastic about their own scholarship and about each other's scholarships who every day poked their heads into each other's offices and asked how are you doing, how is your book coming, listen to what I just found. The tone of intellectual excitement at The Graduate Center was set at the top, I think by a person who, if I may say so is in my experience the finest academic administrator it has ever been my privilege to work with.

I find myself now at the age of fifty-four more productive, more excited about my work than I have ever been in my life and so the second thing I would like to say to you all is that I came back to life intellectually at The City University of New York and for that too I am profoundly grateful. If I have any regret it is that Professor Newton, my freshman composition teacher, and Selma Burrell, cannot be here this afternoon so that I could thank them along with yourselves for this promotion and for considering me today. One last coda, I have another enormous debt of gratitude to The City University of New York that is not in my vitae and it is in September my five-year old son started kindergarten at the Hunter College Elementary School. He is in love with the place and so am I. I hit the jackpot. Thank you, very much.

Statement of President Gregory H. Williams:
Professor Sorkin cannot join us today but I am pleased to share a few words about him and his accomplishments with you. He is an internationally renowned architect and scholar. His prior teaching includes stints at Harvard, Columbia, Yale, Cooper Union as well as lectures and teaching across North America, Europe, Asia and Africa. Over twenty-five years he has had great experience as a practitioner and a theorist. He is considered by his peers to be one of the most respected and important urban architects in the world and a leading educator and intellectual, in fact, a true visionary.

Many of his publications are considered classics and he has addressed some of the most complex and controversial subjects possible in urbanism in books like The Next Jerusalem and After the World Trade Center: Rethinking New York City. He is involved in projects in New York City and around the world and we are truly fortunate to have him at City College and The City University of New York. Thank you.

NO. 6. COMMITTEE ON FACILITIES PLANNING AND MANAGEMENT: RESOLVED, That the following items be approved:

A. BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN COMMUNITY COLLEGE – 199 CHAMBERS STREET FAÇADE RESTORATION:

RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York accept the design for the restoration of the 199 Chambers Street façade project at Borough of Manhattan Community College, as prepared by Superstructures + Engineers Architects, with a construction budget of $3,474,139; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the City University Construction Fund is requested to authorize the Dormitory Authority of the State of New York to complete the contract documents, to bid and award contracts and to supervise the construction of this project.

EXPLANATION: Borough of Manhattan Community College will repair the façade of its main campus building at 199 Chambers Street, in order to comply with public safety as per Local Law 11/98 and the applicable sections of the New York City and New York State Building Codes.

B. YORK COLLEGE – CROSSWALK:

RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York authorize the General Counsel to execute a construction contract on behalf of York College to construct a Crosswalk from 159th to 160th Streets. The contract shall be awarded to the lowest responsive and responsible bidder after public advertisement and sealed bidding pursuant to law and University regulations. The contract cost shall be chargeable to the City Capital Budget, Project No. YORKCOLL, for an amount not to exceed $500,000. The contract shall be subject to approval as to form by the University Office of the General Counsel.

EXPLANATION: York College will construct a sidewalk connecting its new 159th Street Pedestrian Mall to 160th Street, which will facilitate the flow of College-bound pedestrians from the subway and bus stops of Jamaica Center to the main campus buildings.

To design this project, the Board approved the selection of the firm of Lee Weintraub Landscape Architecture LLC by resolution dated September 26, 2005, Cal. No. 6.F.

C. QUEENS COLLEGE – RESIDENCE HALL AUTHORIZATION:

RESOLVED, That the City University request the Dormitory Authority of the State of New York to enter into a ground lease with Q Student Residences, LLC, a special purpose subsidiary of the Queens College Special Projects Fund, Inc. for the leasing of a parcel of property on the campus of Queens College to allow for the construction of a student housing facility of approximately 500 beds thereon; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York authorize the General Counsel and Senior Vice Chancellor for Legal Affairs to negotiate, approve as to form, and execute agreements among Q Student Residences, LLC, Capstone Development Corp., Capstone On-Campus Management, LLC. and any other necessary parties, and The City University of New York, for pre-development and development services and for the subsequent management and operation of the residence facility on the campus of Queens College.

EXPLANATION: The Chancellor and the College President have determined that providing a residence facility on the Queens College campus would promote and enhance the educational mission of the college and university. After completing a demand analysis, CUNY issued a Request for Proposals from experienced dormitory development/management firms to finance, develop and operate – on a self supporting basis – a 500 bed campus residence on an approximately 2.3 acre campus site located between the Rosenthal Library and the Fitzgerald Gymnasium, now used for tennis courts (which will be relocated to other campus sites). 5 firms responded to the RFP, 2 were interviewed by a committee of central office and college representatives and Capstone Development Corp. (“Capstone”) was selected for the development and management of the residence.
The deal structure is as follows: The Dormitory Authority will lease the proposed site to Q Student Residences, LLC, which in turn, with CUNY's approval and/or participation, will enter into separate pre-development, development, and management agreements with Capstone and its related entities. Q Student Residences, LLC, as owner/borrower, will enter into a loan agreement with a lender which will issue long term tax exempt bonds to finance the project. Capstone (pursuant to its development agreement with Q Student Residences, LLC) will use the bond proceeds to engage architects, contractors, furniture suppliers, etc. to design, construct and furnish the building. When construction of the building is completed, Capstone (pursuant to its management agreement) will collect rents (which would be used to pay debt service on the bonds), will operate the facility and would accrue reserves for future repairs.

It is currently estimated that the project will provide 506 student, staff and faculty beds in a five story building of about 150,000 square feet. It is expected to contain primarily 4 bedroom/2 bath units and 2 shared bedroom/2 bath units to house undergraduate students. It will also offer one bedroom and studio units for graduate and resident assistant students and 5 faculty/staff apartments. Multiple common spaces will be provided within the building including private and open study lounges, a laundry room, self serve café, seminar/classroom space and a fitness center. The project will also include the provision of approximately 200 new parking spaces under the building and elsewhere on campus. The direct construction cost is estimated at approximately $44 - $46 million and a bond issue is anticipated at approximately $67 million (to include design and other fees, construction supervision, required reserves, financing costs, etc.). It is anticipated the financing will be completed and construction will begin in the early spring of 2008 and construction will be completed for a Fall 2009 opening.

D. MEDGAR EVERS COLLEGE – 391 EASTERN PARKWAY LEASE:

RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York authorize the Senior Vice Chancellor for Legal Affairs to execute a new ten (10) year lease agreement, on behalf of Medgar Evers College, to rent approximately nine thousand (9,000) square feet of space, at the premises known as 391 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, New York. The agreement shall be subject to approval as to form by the University Office of the General Counsel.

EXPLANATION: On June 25, 2007, the Board of Trustees adopted a resolution authorizing the University to enter into a lease at this location for 6,000 square feet of space at a rental rate not to exceed $26.00/SF. Subsequently, the landlord has been able to make available to the College an additional 3,000 square feet of space. The proposed new ten-year lease will provide the College with additional space for classrooms, seminar rooms and offices to help relieve the overcrowded conditions on campus. The base annual rental is not expected to exceed $234,000 ($26.00/SF) in the first year of the term, with an escalation of 3% per annum for each year thereafter. The ten-year term will start upon completion of certain work requested by the College. The landlord will maintain all mechanical, plumbing and other building systems. The University will be responsible for cleaning and electricity and will reimburse the landlord for its proportionate share of increases in real estate taxes over the base year of the lease.

This resolution is intended to replace the resolution adopted on June 25, 2007, Cal. No. 6.H.

E. LAGUARDIA COMMUNITY COLLEGE – 30-20 THOMSON AVENUE LEASE:

RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees of The City University of New York authorize the Senior Vice Chancellor for Legal Affairs to execute a new five (5) year lease agreement, on behalf of LaGuardia Community College, to rent approximately six thousand (6,000) square feet of space at the premises known as 30-20 Thomson Avenue, Long Island City, New York. The agreement shall be subject to approval as to form by the University Office of the General Counsel.

EXPLANATION: On June 25, 2007, the Board of Trustees adopted a resolution authorizing the University to enter into a lease at this location for 3,500 square feet of space at a rental rate not to exceed $25.00 per square foot. The space will be used by LaGuardia Community College to operate the Accelerated Study in Associates Program, also known as ASAP. Subsequently, the landlord has been able to make available to the College some additional space in an adjacent area. The total area now available for lease is 6,000 square feet of classroom and office space. This additional space is needed by the College to operate the program effectively.

The landlord, at landlord's cost, will renovate the new space to the College's specifications. The base annual rent is not expected to exceed $150,000 ($25.00/SF) per annum in the first year and escalate 3% per annum in each subsequent year of the term. The term will start upon completion by landlord of certain work requested by the College. The landlord will maintain all mechanical, plumbing and other building systems. The University will be responsible for cleaning, the cost of utilities and its proportionate share of increases in real estate taxes over the base year.

This resolution is intended to replace the resolution adopted on June 25, 2007, Cal. No. 6.J.

Upon motion duly made, seconded and carried, the public meeting was adjourned at 5:58 P.M.

(13) The Fund Trustees shall be responsible in a fiduciary capacity for all money, property or other assets received, managed or disbursed by them or under their authority, and shall exercise their duties prudently in reliance upon advice and opinions rendered by competent counsel, consultants, actuaries, auditors and other professional consultants.

commission, loan service or any other thing of value from the Fund or which is charged against the Fund or would otherwise be payable to the Fund, either directly or indirectly, except that any such person may be reimbursed for his or her reasonable expenses necessarily incurred and any such person may receive any employee benefits to which he or she is otherwise entitled, and any employee, officer, or Trustee of the Fund may receive from the Fund reasonable compensation for necessary services rendered or incurred by him or her in connection with his or her duties as such; provided that nothing contained in this section shall affect the payment to the Fund of any dividend or rate credit or other adjustment due under the terms of any insurance or annuity contract, or the receipt by the Fund of reasonable payments for administration of benefits that are not paid out of the assets of the Fund. Any employee, officer, or Trustee who violates this provision shall be removed from his or her position.

(15) The Fund is prohibited from employing or retaining or continuing to employ or to retain any person if such employment or retention involves a conflict of interest.

(16) No political contributions shall be made directly or indirectly from assets or property of the Fund.

(17) The Fund shall comply with all the city, state or federal laws applicable to the Fund, and take all steps necessary for such compliance.

(18) CUNY and its officials and employees shall not be liable for any mistake or error of judgment, whether intentional, negligent or otherwise, or any other act of omission or commission, of the Fund or the Fund Trustees, in the Fund’s receipt, transmission, or expenditure of the sums CUNY contributes to the Fund, in the operation or administration of the Fund, or for any failure of the Fund for any reason whatsoever, to carry out the terms of this Indenture in part or in whole for the benefit of each participant and beneficiary. The Fund hereby further agrees that out of its funds it will hold CUNY and its officials and employees harmless against any claim whatsoever arising out of the Fund’s receipt, transmission, or expenditure of the CUNY contributions, or the operation or administration of such Fund, or the failure of the Fund or Fund Trustee for any reason whatsoever, to carry out the terms of this Indenture in part or in whole for the benefit of each participant and beneficiary, except for the default of CUNY in making its contributions under this Indenture. For the purposes of this paragraph, the Fund shall be fully responsible for the administration and provision of all Fund welfare benefits to each participant and beneficiary.

(19) The term of this Indenture shall be from the date of this Indenture until such time as it shall be cancelled by any party on at least six months notice to the others provided that the terminal date shall be August 31st of any year. In the event of the cancellation of this Indenture, the Fund shall forthwith account to CUNY and the PSC for all its funds and other assets at the time of the expiration of this Indenture and shall pay such balances and other assets to CUNY for the continuation of the existing welfare benefits for the participants and beneficiaries hereof.

(20) Contributions for Retirees

(a) This Indenture and all prior agreements between the University and the PSC shall be interpreted as intending and allowing all welfare contributions made by the University on behalf of retirees to be made to the Fund and to continue to be so made.

(b) The contributions referred to in subsection (a) of this section were intended to be and shall continue to be combined and commingled with contributions made at any time, either directly or indirectly, on behalf of active employees of the University. The University and the PSC did not and do not intend that separate trust funds be set up for active employees and retirees.

(c) The Board of Trustees has had and continues to have the sole authority to devise and administer plans of benefits for active employees or groupings of active employees (based upon rational classifications such as adjunct status) and retirees or groupings of retirees and such benefits shall be paid and were intended to be paid from the body of all monies contributed to the Fund on behalf of both active employees and retirees.
(d) Any preceding agreement between the University and the PSC relating to contributions on behalf of active employees or retirees shall be read to conform to this section and this section is binding upon the University and the PSC and all participants and beneficiaries.
