EXPLANATION: Baruch College’s Zicklin School of Business is launching a new Executive Business Doctorate program. This innovative program is designed for experienced executives who have already completed a graduate degree. The candidate’s objective is to learn to conduct research in applied areas of business that are relevant to their careers, firms, and industries. Students will take this 3-year program in cohort style. The proposed total program costs are comparable with other executive doctoral programs. The tuition charges are based on the current CUNY doctoral tuition.

The program fees are needed to cover the operating costs of the EBD program. As an executive program, there are many special services to be covered, including some portion of compensation to faculty for teaching, and research/dissertation guidance, as well as all rentals for classroom space, classroom materials, class-day meals, administrative support, and others. These services are similar to those of comparable executive doctorate programs.

The maintenance fee reflects the cost of dissertation guidance for students who need more than three years to complete the program.

CUNY tuition charged to non-residents is higher than that charged to residents. However, the overall cost is the same for both non-residents and residents as this is the established market practice for Executive Business programs. Zicklin School of Business will absorb the difference, accepting less net program fees for out of state and international students. There will still, however, be sufficient funds to cover the operational costs for those students.
