C. Discussion of Key Issues

REPORTS FROM SHELLY MASI, PARTNER, AND ERIN SCHEMBARI, SENIOR MANAGER, KPMG

In response to a finding on the failure of several colleges to file program participation agreements with the Department of Education, University Controller Barry Kaufman stated that CUNY has implemented a procedure to address the issue. Colleges will now complete the program participation agreement, then send it to the Office of Academic Affairs, where the agreement will be reviewed before it is submitted to the U.S. Department of Education. He added that all the programs in question qualified for TAP and this was really an administrative oversight on the part of the colleges, which was discovered by the Office of the University Controller because of the new ruling that the U.S. Department of Education had on gainful employment that forced degree granting institutions to look at their certificate programs. CUNY and a lot of other institutions were caught in this situation, and it is assumed that there will not be a penalty imposed.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON AUDIT

MINUTES OF THE MEETING
MARCH 6, 2011

Mr. Kaufman noted that in the years since he became the University Controller at CUNY this is the best A-133 audit report that the university has had. There are basically three findings in the 2011 report. There are no R2T4 findings in the report, whereas several years ago CUNY was having serious problems with this issue. An attempt was made to address this through the hard work of staff in the Office of the University Controller, the Office of Internal Audit, and the Office of Enrollment Management who met with the colleges on a monthly basis, directing them to appoint an R2T4 coordinator, and brought the issue under control.

Executive Vice Chancellor and Chief Operating Officer Allan Dobrin thanked University Controller Kaufman for staying the course, and added that the University owes him a debt of gratitude.

In response to a concern noted by Prof. Terrence Martell about terminated individuals' access to CUNY's financial accounting systems, University Controller Kaufman stated that he would work with COHR about once again sending notification out to the various departments in Central Office, and with Vice Chancellor Gloriana Waters about bringing the issue of proper notifications up as an agenda item when she next meets with the campus HR directors.
